Norm Engle Joins E-Z Pack's New Service Division

Industry veteran brings close to 40 years of industry experience to company

CYNTHIANA, Ky. — Nov. 28, 2007 — E-Z Pack Holdings, LLC, a leading full-service manufacturer and provider of parts and refuse bodies announced today the addition of Norm Engle to its management team as field service manager. In his new position Engle will help with the establishment and growth of the new service division of the company.

A long-time provider of affordable high-quality parts and equipment, EZ-Pack has added a service division and is now a full-service provider. The company offers top-of-the-line services including parts fulfillment, parts room setup and fleet analysis. With a staff highly experienced in maintenance and friendly service, the company reduces repair downtime for trucks and provides low-cost maintenance.

Norm is a seasoned veteran with a strong reputation within the industry. He comes to E-Z Pack from McNeilus Trucking and Manufacturing, the largest manufacturer of refuse equipment in the United States, where he spent the past decade using his mechanical expertise to train staff and service customers.

He started his career nearly four decades ago in 1968 with EAK Refuse, a family-owned business. After building the business for eight years, he joined the military and started his 22-year career in the Army and Marine Corps.

While serving his country, Norm continued to build his mechanical expertise by servicing tanks and other military equipment, both domestically and abroad. During the last decade of his military service, he was on reserve status and continued to build his reputation as a top industry mechanic and shop foreman at Waste Industries and Browning Ferris Industries.

Jeff Wellman, parts and service warranty general manager of E-Z Pack, says, "This is an exciting time for the company, as we grow our presence in the industry sector. We are very excited to have Norm join our team to help us with those efforts. The company already has the reputation of providing exceptional product fulfillment with a 24-hour turnaround, and now we can service the equipment that we sell. This expansion will help us become the one-stop shop for our customers.”
